

Below zero means the direction matches another axis better than its own

